SHIAWASSEE COUNTY HISTORICAL DATA

Shiawassee County takes its name from the Shiawassee River, which enters the county near the southeast corner, passes through the villages of Byron and Vernon, the cities of Corunna and Owosso, and from there flows north into the Saginaw Bay, leaving this county near the center of the northern boundary.

The name of Shiawassee is derived from an Indian word, meaning "Straight Ahead Channel." On the east is Genesee County; to the south lies Ingham and Livingston Counties, to the west, Clinton and to the north, Saginaw. Shiawassee County from east to west is approximately 22 ½ miles wide and from north to south is 24 ½ miles long.

The first white man to set foot in the Shiawassee County, as early as 1795, was a Frenchman named Bolieu. He established himself near the present site of Saginaw about that date for the purpose of trading with the Indians.

The first session of the County Board of Supervisors was held in October of 1837. On October 7th, 1839 the County Board of Supervisors convened at Corunna and accepted a block of land 300 square feet donated by the County Seat Company and designated as the Public Square. Upon this plot, the first Courthouse was erected and the present Courthouse now occupies this site.

Owosso, the largest city in the county, was the birth place of several famous men, among them being former Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York and James Oliver Curwood, author and conservationist.
